9 FRANK MORETTI-MOROTE,

10 Petitioner,

11 v.

12 ERIC H. HOLDER, JR., Attorney General of 13 the United States, and NATHALIE ASHER,
14 Seattle Field Office Director, United States
Immigration and Customs Enforcement,

Respondents.

Case No. C11-1856-JLR-JPD

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

15 I. INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY CONCLUSION

16 Petitioner Frank Moretti-Morote is currently held in immigration custody at the 17 Northwest Detention Center in Tacoma, Washington. He has filed a petition for writ of habeas 18 corpus pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2241, challenging his continued detention, and seeking release
19 under an order of supervision or on bond. Dkt. 4. On January 24, 2012, petitioner was accorded 20 a bond hearing pursuant to Casas-Castrillon v. DHS, 535 F.3d 942 (9th Cir. 2008), and Prieto-
21 Romero v. Clark, 534 F.3d 1053 (9th Cir. 2008), and was granted release under bond of $25,000.
22 Dkt. 16, Ex. 1. Because petitioner has received a bond hearing and was granted release under

1 bond, the Court recommends that the habeas petition be DENIED, respondents' motion to 2 dismiss be GRANTED, and this case be DISMISSED with prejudice.

3 II. BACKGROUND AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

4 Petitioner is a native and citizen of Peru who entered the United States in 1995 without 5 inspection by an immigration officer. Administrative Record ("AR") at L19. He applied for 6 asylum and his application was granted on September 28, 1999. AR at L108-14, R119. On 7 December 21, 2004, petitioner was convicted of possession of a controlled substance. AR at 8 L464-65. Thereafter, the Department of Homeland Security moved to reopen petitioner's
9 deportation proceedings and terminate his asylee status, which was granted. AR at L217-19, 10 L423-24.

11 On May 23, 2011, an immigration judge ("IJ") denied petitioner's application for asylum, 12 withholding of removal, and protection under the Convention Against Torture, and ordered him
13 removed to Peru. AR at R434. Petitioner appealed the IJ's decision to the Board of Immigration
14 Appeals ("BIA"), which dismissed the appeal on October 26, 2011. AR at L681-82. Petitioner 15 filed a petition for review of the BIA's decision with the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, which 16 remains pending and a temporary stay of removal is in place. See Moretti-Morote v. Holder, No.
17 11-73593 (9th Cir. filed November 25, 2011).

18 Petitioner filed the present petition on November 29, 2011, challenging the legality of his 19 detention, and seeking release under an order of supervision or on bond. Dkt. 4. Respondents
20 filed a return to the petition on December 10, 2011, indicating that a bond hearing was expected 21 on or before January 27, 2012. Dkt. 4. Accordingly, the Court ordered respondents to furnish 22 the Court with a copy of petitioner's bond proceedings. Dkt. 13.

1 The hearing was conducted on January 24, 2012, and on February 3, 2012, the IJ issued a 2 written decision finding concerns that petitioner was a flight risk and granting him release on 3 $25,000 bond. Dkt. 15, Ex. 1. Petitioner now moves for a bond reduction, arguing that he is 4 unable to afford the $25,000 bond amount.

5 III. DISCUSSION

6 Title 28 U.S.C. § 2241(c)(3) authorizes a district court to grant a writ of habeas corpus 7 whenever a petitioner is “in custody in violation of the Constitution or laws or treaties of the 8 United States.” 28 U.S.C. § 2241(c)(3). “[T]he Fifth Amendment entitles aliens to due process
9 of law in deportation proceedings.” Demore v. Kim, 538 U.S. 510, 523 (2003) (citations
10 omitted). “Even where detention is permissible, however, due process requires ‘adequate 11 procedural protections’ to ensure that the government’s asserted justification for physical 12 confinement ‘outweighs the individual’s constitutionally protected interest in avoiding physical 13 restraint.’” Casas-Castrillon, 535 F.3d at 950 (quoting Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678, 690 14 (2001)).

15 When an alien’s removal has been stayed pending judicial review of the order of 16 removal, the alien is detained pursuant to the Attorney General’s discretionary authority under 8
17 U.S.C. § 1226(a). Casas-Castrillon, 535 F.3d at 951; Prieto-Romero, 534 F.3d at 1065-66.
18 Procedural due process requires that such aliens be afforded an individualized bond hearing 19 before an immigration judge, at which the government bears the burden to prove by clear and 20 convincing evidence that the alien is a flight risk or a danger to the community to justify denial 21 of bond. Singh v. Holder, 638 F.3d 1196, 1203 (9th Cir. 2011).

22 In the present case, all of these requirements were met. As the IJ indicated in the 23 memorandum decision, “[i]t is the government’s burden to prove by clear and convincing

1 evidence that continued detention is justified.” Dkt. 16, Ex 1 at 5. The IJ did not find that the 2 government met its burden by clear and convincing evidence that petitioner was a danger. Id. at 3 7. However, the IJ had concerns that petitioner was a flight risk as expressed by the government
4 and, therefore, set bond at $25,000. Id. at 8. Because petitioner’s bond hearing provided 5 petitioner with the sole remedy to which he was entitled, his petition must be denied as moot.
6 See Casas-Castrillon, 535 F.3d at 951; Prieto-Romero, 534 F.3d at 1067.

7 Petitioner asks this Court to direct the immigration judge to release him on conditional 8 parole or to reduce his bond to $1,500. Dkt. 16. Section 1226(e), however, does not permit the 9 Court to review the IJ’s discretionary judgment regarding the reasonableness of the bond 10 amount, even if petitioner cannot afford to pay it. Prieto-Romero, 534 F.3d at 1067. That 11 provision provides: “The Attorney General’s discretionary judgment regarding the application 12 of this section shall not be subject to review. No court may set aside any action or decision by 13 the Attorney General under this section regarding the detention or release of any alien or the 14 grant, revocation, or denial of bond or parole.” 8 U.S.C. § 1226(e). Thus, the Court lacks 15 jurisdiction to reach the merits of petitioner’s claim.¹

18 ¹ To the extent petitioner challenges the lawfulness of his removal to Peru, such claims 19 are not reviewable by this Court. Dkt. 8. The REAL ID Act of 2005 eliminated all federal 20 district court jurisdiction over final orders of removal and vested the courts of appeal with the 21 “sole and exclusive means for judicial review of an order of removal.” 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(5); 22 see also 8 U.S.C. § 1252(b)(9) (“Judicial review of all questions of law and fact, including 23 interpretation and application of constitutional and statutory provisions, arising from any action 24 taken or proceeding brought to remove an alien from the United States . . . shall be available only in judicial review of a final order under this section”). The Court lacks jurisdiction to consider the merits of petitioner’s claim that the IJ and the BIA ignored evidence he presented in support of his application for relief – as it relates to a final order of removability. Petitioner’s claim is currently and properly pending review before the Ninth Circuit.

1 IV. CONCLUSION

2 For the foregoing reasons, the Court recommends that petitioner's habeas petition be 3 DENIED, respondents' motion to dismiss be GRANTED, and this matter be DISMISSED with 4 prejudice. All other pending motions should be STRICKEN as moot. A proposed order
5 accompanies this Report and Recommendation.
